

SANDBAR SHARK

Carcharhinus plumbeus

Jawsome

A sandbar shark's specialized teeth help it to eat a variety of foods, including small fish, squid, crabs, shrimp, and some hard-shelled mollusks.

What's in a name?

Sandbar sharks get their name from the sandy or muddy shoreline or estuary habitats where they live. They are also sometimes called brown sharks because of the greyish-tan color of their skin.
