2017 Social Media Toolkit:
Honoring 30 Years of Domestic Violence Awareness Month

Provided by National Coalition Against Domestic Violence 8/2017
THANK YOU FOR BEING A PART OF #DVAMTurns30

Thanks for being an ambassador for honoring the 30th anniversary of Domestic Violence Awareness Month (DVAM)! In this toolkit, we have included information, background, messaging and social media content that will be helpful when promoting your involvement in #DVAMTurns30 and including others to join us this historic anniversary!

Background

Domestic Violence Awareness Month (DVAM) was launched nationwide in October 1987 as a way to connect and unite individuals and organizations working on domestic violence issues and raise awareness for those issues.

Over the last three decades, much progress has been made to support domestic violence victims and survivors, to hold abusers accountable, and to create and update legislation to further those goals.

You can play an important role in honoring the accomplishments made and showing your support for victims and survivors. Acting with NCADV on social media gives you a chance to have a voice in the conversation about domestic violence.

1995  The first person to be convicted of a felony under the Violence Against Women Act in crossing state lines (West Virginia and Kentucky) to assault his wife occurred.

1995  With origins stemming from the Domestic Violence Coalition on Public Policy, the National Network to End Domestic Violence was initially incorporated to provide a national lobbying voice for state domestic violence coalitions.

1996  The Domestic Violence Offender Gun Ban was passed by Congress to extend the federal prohibition on firearms possession by criminals to include individuals convicted of misdemeanor domestic violence and child abuse crimes.

1996  The National Domestic Violence Hotline opens and is further funded under the Violence Against Women Act. The hotline responds to nearly 9,000 calls during the first month of operation.

1997  Sacred Circle, the National Resource Center to End Violence Against Native Women, was established to provide technical assistance, policy development, training institutes and resource information regarding domestic violence and sexual assault to develop coordinated agency response in American Indian and Alaska Native tribal communities.

1997  The National Latino Alliance for the Elimination of Domestic Violence was formed at the National Symposium on La Violencia Domestica: An Emerging Dialogue Among Latinos in Washington D.C.

1997  An anti-stalking law signed by U.S. President Bill Clinton makes interstate stalking and harassment a federal offence whether or not the victim had obtained a protection or restraining order.

1999  My Sister’s Place piloted a Latino Outreach Program in Washington, D.C., that translated educational materials, recruited bilingual volunteers, facilitated workshops and raised consciousness in the Latino community.

2000  The Violence Against Women Act of 2000 was passed and reauthorized funding for 1) training, 2) services for battered/abused women and their children, and 3) creating new programs to include stalking and dating violence. $3.3 billion was authorized for the years 2000-2005.

2001  President George W. Bush signed into law the Stamp Out Domestic Violence Act of 2001 that called for a creation of a postal stamp that would raise funds for victim services.

2001  The Office of Women Advocates, Puerto Rico, was founded.

2002  WomenSpirit Coalition/Washington State Native American Coalition Against Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault was founded.

2005  The U.S. Congress updated the Violence Against Women Act to include teen dating violence and more prevention funding.
2008  NCADV released the eighth edition of the National Directory of Domestic Violence Programs, which listed over 2,000 agencies. This comprehensive listing of programs remains the most used publication in the domestic violence field.

2009  Lynn Rosenthal was appointed as the first White House Advisor on Violence Against Women.
